MISSOULA---

Four University of Montana law students recently attended the Law Student Division Section of the American Bar Association (ABA) Conference in Chicago.

Taking part in the August 5-9 sessions were: Carol Dulaney, Missoula, a third-year student and lieutenant governor of the 12th Circuit of the Law Student Division; Mark Guenther, Great Falls, a third-year student and the UM law school Law Student Division representative; John Maynard, Billings, president of the UM Student Bar Association, and Don Sommerfeld, Bozeman, a first-year student who was recently appointed 12th Circuit Law Student Division member of the ABA Continuing Legal Education Committee.

The students attended sessions of the ABA Conference and also such special law student division sessions as a trial tactics demonstration by well-known lawyers F. Lee Bailey, for the defense, and Richard Sprague, for the prosecution; and an address by CBC News Correspondent Fred Graham, entitled "Freedom of Speech for Lawyers". Sen. Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon also spoke on "Simplification in Government".

During the Law Student Division sessions, Ms. Dulaney received a Silver Key Award for her work on the resolutions committee.
